Does your company have entry level vacancies? Are you expanding operations?

If you need workers with sector-specific skills, you can connect with an untapped labor force by partnering with English for New Bostonians (ENB) to train limited-English speakers for your positions.

ENB is collaborating with MassMEP and five employers to design and deliver Immigrant Futures in Food Manufacturing (IFFI). Your company can learn from this exciting new initiative.

Funded by CommCorp, IFFI draws on the deep experience of ENB and MassMEP in English instruction, training and manufacturing. Candidates trained in best practices, safety, vocabulary, digital literacy, and math skills will apply for jobs with employer partners and continue training once employed.

Your company could benefit from our practical experience and reap these paybacks:

- Promote trained workers from within, boost retention, and reduce turnover.
- Connect with training experts, workforce development systems, colleagues in the field.
- Get help securing state funding to train new or incumbent employees.
- Build workforce stability while advancing goals of immigrant workers.

As an employer partner with ENB, your tasks will be to:

- Articulate English language, technical and soft skills required for entry-level employment and career advancement.
- Work with us to design and implement a curriculum.
- Screen, hire, and onboard candidates.

Hundreds of highly determined students in ENB’s English, digital literacy, and career preparation classes are ready for training.

If you are interested in replicating an initiative such as Immigrant Future in Food Manufacturing within your company or sector, please contact Oscar Escobar at oescobar@englishfornewbostonians.org.